This is a wonderful book for colorists of all ages who love travel and coloring architectural illustrations, each image is original and in the back of the book you will find a short description about the illustration including its exact location. These images are from 29 countries from around the world and you will find scenes from Asia, Europe and the Americas, simple, medium and challenging images, vistas and close up street scenes, and a variety of architectural types. Truly a book that will take you around the world as you color in your easy chair and dream of the day you might visit these locations.

1. 47 Architectural illustrations created from original photographs of actual places, from around the world and there is a list that tells you the city the image is from and a short paragraph about the artists experiences in each place.
2. Printed one per page, the back of each page is blank except a small number located at the bottom that tells you which illustration and place you are coloring.
3. Printed on light weight, bright white paper, all markers and gel pens leak through the paper, I just place a sheet of paper under the page I am coloring to prevent damage to the next page.
4. All illustrations are centered and bordered leaving a space between the image and the binding, this is enough space to easily color each complete image, or remove a single page from this book or to cut the binding off for classes and coloring groups.

I was really excited to get this book, and overall I'm very happy with the purchase. I was planning on starting with colored pencils, but as they are currently missing, I kicked things off with markers. It was quite impressed that not only did they not bleed through to the next page, but were barely visible on the back of the page they were used on. Paper quality is very nice, and despite there being no bleed, it's nice that the backs of the images are blank, so you don't have to worry about it at all. For the most part the images are interesting; there's a fairly good variety. A couple images were probably beautiful photos with great perspective, but slightly less appealing for coloring (big blank areas, lots of bricks). That's personal preference though, and colored pencils, or another medium that allows for shading and variation, would definitely help with that. I particularly like many of the city rooftop views, and the street scenes with textiles or more people, and more opportunity for creative color choices. Quality is very nice, and the margins make coloring the whole image possible and easy (book lies flat). I was quite impressed with how many pages/images there were; lots to choose from, with a good variation in level. Some images are significantly more detailed than others, so you'll need a fine point and lots of time, but I'd say the right balance with some of the less busy ones. I only have a couple small qualms/recommendations, and I do realize they are rather nit-picky: The page margins are smaller at the top than the bottom, and since most of the images are horizontal, this means they are all off-center to the right when coloring. Not a big deal overall, but visually I felt the "offness."
