Customer Reviews

I bought this and only afterwards read the reviews warning against the thick barlines. The critique is accurate, the staff lines are quite thick, but even worse, the staves are spaces far too close together to allow for ledger lines above or below the staff. The "Carta" staff paper books by Hal Leonard are MUCH superior, thin staff lines and spacious spacing between staves.

The staff lines seem a bit too thick. Thick staff lines serve no purpose. They "compete" with the notes. Razor-thin lines, on the other hand, allow the notes to stand out more clearly. The quality of the paper and binding are very satisfactory. Too bad about those heavy staff lines.

I purchased this notebook not for music composition, but for use as an assignment/note book for my piano lessons. The binding and paper are good quality and the paper stands up to erasures pretty well, but I agree with a previous reviewer that the staff lines are way too thick. They're as thick as thickly-ruled normal notebook/looseleaf paper, but they're in black ink rather than a light blue, which gets in the way of reading my notes (especially since I use pencil.) If you look at the staff lines that are on the cover of the book itself, that's pretty much what you're dealing with. I bought four of these as part of the 4-for-3 deal and I got free shipping, but even with the convenience of not having to go to the store and a sale price of $3.38 per notebook, I wouldn't purchase again. Those dark staff lines really get in the way.

I ordered 2 of these for my 8-year-old son who loves writing sheet music. He likes the paper quite well and hasn't complained about any features of the books. The spiral binding lets the book lay flat, which works well for him because he usually writes from the floor.

I just started the guitar and needed some manuscript paper for my class. This is good quality paper, and it is a sturdy notebook. Pros: Fits nicely like other notebooks, same size Sturdy, hasn't fallen apart like other notebooks The paper isn't bleed through or smudgy like other cheap manuscript journals that sell a cheap product for a high price. Cons: NONE

This is excellent for any songwriter!!!! There are lots of papers in here and is nice size. The front and back covers are durable. This product is definitely worth the money.

Written on good paper, no problems with boldness or spacing for me, seems to have a lot of pages, will probably last a whole semester unlike other paper I've used. Great product!

The staves are spaced enough to write notes in between them, like for a theory class, and you don't have to write the music notes so small like on other pages. This paper forces you to be neat :D
